10. A synopsis of the curriculum

Module Aims

This module provides a comprehensive evaluative insight into the marketing planning process. Here candidates will be expected to primarily research, analyse and in turn devise a marketing plan for a live partnering organisation or case study simulation. The unit will develop candidates' ability to evaluate the various concepts, theories and frameworks seen throughout marketing in order to avoid restricting strategic thinking.

15. Pearson College London recognises and has embedded the expectations of current disability equality legislation, and supports students with a declared disability or special educational need in its teaching.

Within this module we will make reasonable adjustments wherever necessary, including additional or substitute materials, teaching modes or assessment methods for students who have declared and discussed their learning support needs. Arrangements for students with declared disabilities will be made on an individual basis, in consultation with the College's Registry which oversees disability/dyslexia student support, and specialist support will be provided where needed.

16. Campus(es) or Centre(s) where module will be delivered:

Pearson College London

17. Internationalisation

Students are encouraged to consider both internationalisation of marketing efforts and the increasingly global nature of markets throughout many elements of this module. Students will be encouraged to think about how local and international contexts and trends affect marketing efforts and outcomes (relevant to consideration of external environment LOs 8.2 - 8.5). Examples and case studies in seminars will be taken from a variety of international contexts so students have an up-to-date understanding of marketing trends and topics around the world. Materials for lectures and those given to the students via their assigned readings will include international content so that students can consider this topic both internationally and globally.
